Although the recent heavy rain on Maui in some ways resembled the flood of ancient days, people are beginning to rejoice at the great good the storm wrought. Everything is looking fresh and green and Kula farmers are beginning to realize that their crops are coming out in fine shape.

MANY MONDAY DRUNKS.

Numbers and Variety the Display—Admonition to Emalia.

All the confirmed police court rounders were on hand yesterday morning. The docket carried over sixty cases which were thrashed out in an hour and a half. The contingent of drunks was unusually heavy and the variety was fully as extensive as that of the fish on sale in the market. The twenty-seven drunks included representatives of every nationality from Norway to the South Seas.

"Terrible," nationality unknown, defaulted bail. "Sweet Emalia" was up for drunkenness again. She fought the case and won. When the officer claimed that he found her rioting in the street and that he got up close and could smell the swipes on her breath, she retorted that the officer must have gotten a whiff of his own breath. She insisted that on this occasion she was sober as the judge and as quiet as a quaker.

Judge Wilcox said softly: "Emalia, I cannot believe that you are drunk all of the time and will give you the benefit of the doubt. You may go."

WOULD LIVE WITH A SAINT.

Moke's Methods of Conversion Not Approved by Judge Wilcox.

Moke Kamakulahi, famous as the husband of Emalia, was fined $5 yesterday for beating his celebrated spouse. He has been before the bar on this charge several times and yesterday seemed somewhat discouraged with the progress he had made in making the woman a saint.

Judge Wilcox gave him a bouquet of admonition along with the fine, among which was the surprising observation that the prisoner knew Emalia when he married her and that he should not have embarked upon this matrimonial experiment, if he really wanted to live with a saint. Anyhow the court disapproved the process Moke's missionary movements in making a saint of his wife.

are just as unique as this cut. Just think of a 20 payment life policy guaranteed paid-up in 15 years, or of a 15 payment policy guaranteed paid-up in 12 years. This guarantee is backed by $20,000,000 more than the security given by any other life insurance company. Policy provides increasing insurance yearly as well as liberal loans and surrender value either in cash or paid-up insurance. It provides also for automatic extended insurance; in other words, more insurance for the same money, or the same insurance for less money than given by any other company on earth.
